Top left: Colin Ferrie of Rossland's Black Jack Ski Club won his first medal of the Canada Winter Games, skiing to gold in the 1.5 km classic sprint. "I've never really thought of myself as much of a sprinter, always more of a distance skier," said the 21-year-old racer. "So I was definitely really relaxed going into the race, not expecting too much, and I think in the end, that kind of helped me. It's an amazing feeling right now. It's hard to describe. I'm over the moon really." Ferrie competed in the 2011 Canada Winter Games in Halifax and the opportunity to race at home in B.C. was a special honour. "I was hoping to get a chance to race at home and then to win gold here is just phenomenal."
